
Cotswold Seeds sowing the seeds for expansion

Cotswold Seeds is currently undergoing an expansion project to its warehousing and processing facility in Moreton-in-Marsh, Gloucestershire. The new facility will triple the mixing capacity, and will include the installation of more efficient technology to better process grass seed mixtures. It will also solve the problem of storage during busy peak periods. Those that have visited during these busy seasons will understand the need for extra covered space for seed holding and dispatch.

Completion is set for early 2013, with the building in full operation in time for the spring season.
